MTBC Thanks Healthcare Provider Clients with Stock Awards
Healthcare IT Company Launches First of its Kind Client Loyalty Program via LOYAL3

SOMERSET, N.J.– September 7, 2016 (Marketwired) – MTBC (NASDAQ: MTBC), a leading provider of cloud-based healthcare IT and practice management solutions, today announced that it will provide its clients with shares of its publicly traded common stock in conjunction with the launch of its new, first of its kind, Client Loyalty Program.

MTBC’s Client Loyalty Program is a special initiative enabling thousands of medical providers across its network to become shareholders. The program, which is the first of its kind offered by a healthcare IT company, is a way to thank clients for using MTBC’s services and referring other physician practices and health organizations to MTBC. New MTBC clients will also be eligible to participate and receive awards.

“MTBC would not be where it is today without the dedicated network of physicians, practices and health organizations that share in our commitment of facilitating affordable, quality healthcare,” said Stephen Snyder, MTBC President. “We appreciate their partnership and want them to have the opportunity to share in the benefits of our growth as they refer their colleagues to MTBC.”

MTBC has partnered with SEC-registered online brokerage and technology company, LOYAL3, to administer MTBC’s Client Loyalty Program and stock offering. LOYAL3 specializes in affinity offerings that enable companies to offer stock ownership to their employees, customers and partners.

“We’re excited to help companies like MTBC enable their customers to become shareholders,” said Josh Rutberg, Managing Director of LOYAL3. “It’s an innovative way to show customers appreciation for their loyalty and support.”

Turning clients into shareholders

- Converting clients into shareholders may help strengthen customer relationships, which can lead to increased increase revenues, referrals and retention
- When your customers are high-net-worth individuals, they are ideal shareholders for a microcap public company
- Client shareholders can become advocates for your products and services

MTBC (MTBC) is embarking on a program to turn many of its clients into shareholders. Most of MTBC's clients are doctors in practices with 1 to 10 physicians, and we are offering these clients up to 100,000 shares of MTBC's common stock for free.

Businesses have been trying to get their clients to look at them as partners, not vendors, for years. Bain & Company, a global consulting firm, has shown that loyal customers spend more with companies that treat them well, cost less to serve and refer more customers who are like them.

T-Mobile (TMUS) figured out the ultimate way to turn customers into partners: in June 2016 they announced a program to thank customers by giving them each one share of the company's stock. "No publicly traded company has done this before, ever," CEO John Legere said. "Why should Wall Street be the only ones to benefit [from our company's success]? You should too." We agree with John's philosophy!

According to Bain, when customers own your stock, they spend 54% more money and refer twice as many new customers. So while customers benefit from becoming stockholders, in the end, it is the stockholders who actually gain the most.

MTBC just announced our Client Rewards Program, as a way to turn our clients, mostly physicians who own their own medical practices, into owners of MTBC. We are offering 100 shares of our publicly traded common stock (MTBC) to each provider for whom we submit medical billing, just for being our loyal client. No strings. Clients don't have to do anything in return.

We are also offering 1,000 shares for each new practice that a client introduces to MTBC, if that practice becomes our client before year-end, as well as offering 100 shares to each provider at our new clients.

We have allocated 100,000 shares of MTBC's common stock to this program, out of 745,000 shares of treasury stock, which MTBC repurchased on the open market earlier this year, when, in our view, our shares were undervalued. No new shares will be issued, so shareholders won't be diluted.

More than half of our clients have joined us through acquisitions. We think this is a good way to introduce these clients to the benefits of working with MTBC (besides our great people, leading edge technology, and excellent customer service). We think that when clients view themselves as shareholders, our relationships will become deeper, with more clients referring colleagues to us (just as they refer patients to these colleagues.)

If we get so many referrals that we exhaust our 100,000 shares, we may elect to add more shares to the program. In the future, if the market reacts positively to this program, we could, for example, issue rewards for $1,000 worth of MTBC stock for a new referral, utilizing fewer shares. If the plan doesn't prove popular with our clients or with investors, we don't need to extend it after completion of the currently announced program.

We think that a referral bonus worth about $1,000 is a great deal for investors, since new clients sign a 36-month contract, with a monthly minimum of $995 per provider per month. And if a one-time incentive of 100 shares gives our customers a shareholder-mindset, it is a phenomenal investment.

The program is powered by LOYAL3 Securities, Inc., an SEC-registered online brokerage and technology company that specializes in affinity stock ownership through its 3 core offerings: Stock Rewards, Capital Markets and Investing Platform. LOYAL3 has built a scaled platform that has made it possible for innovative companies such as Square (SQ), GoPro (GPRO) and Virgin America (VA) to offer stock ownership to their customers, employees, partners and fans.

We believe that stock ownership, even on a small scale, should build a class of owners who are invested in the success of our company and our brand.

Our program just launched, so I can provide an update to you in a few months.

I invite you to follow us and learn more about MTBC's business.
